On Monday March 3, Penny, a final year law student, offered to sell to Peter her MacBook Pro for $9,000. Penny agreed to give Peter some time to organise the purchase money. She told him that she would keep her offer to him open until 4 pm on Friday March 7, but after that time she would be offering the MacBook Pro to others.

On Thursday, March 6, while having lunch with his classmate Helen, Peter tells Helen that he is going to buy Penny's MacBook Pro. He tells her that he has finally gathered sufficient money and was going to pay Penny for the MacBook Pro later that evening. Helen, who was aware that Penny had her MacBook Pro for sale answered, "I hope that Penny has two MacBook Pros, because James told me this morning that he had bought Penny's MacBook Pro yesterday, for $9,000."

Question 10

A group of high school students, under the guidance of their form teacher went on a trip to the Taino Museum and Site. Adjoining this site is Mogul Sugar Estate Ltd a large sugar plantation and factory belonging to a Mr. Mogul. The plantation and factory have been closed for some time. There are signs at several points on the perimeter of the estate saying “No trespassers - Trespassers will be prosecuted”.

The form teacher, who was reading an online course in law, explained to the children that the sign contained an erroneous statement of the law. He said that trespass was a civil wrong for which no one could be prosecuted.

While the Curator of the Taino Museum was conducting a tour of the museum and site with the children, two boys, Hioctane Jones and his friend Dashani Girod, sneaked away and went to explore the sugar plantation. They kept the security guard under observation. Hioctane threw a stone which fell some distance from the guard who went to investigate. At this point the boys crept through the fence onto the plantation and into the factory yard.

Unaware that there were dogs on the premises, they tried to enter the factory at which time, Hioctane, who was in front, was attacked by two dogs. Dashani ran to a nearby tree. The dogs dragged and mauled Hioctane and only ceased their attack when Hioctane fell head foremost into a deep drain. By this time the watchman had arrived on the scene. Dashani who had witnessed the canine attack on his friend fainted and fell motionless to the ground.

Advise Mogul Estates Ltd. on any legal rights and or liabilities arising out of the facts.
